pose, have occ ames, beware the BRAUTIFYIN S Queen Mary's Accession to the Throne was attended with Difficulty, fo the very Dawn of her Reign was tinctur'd, not to fay dy's, with Blood. The Duke of Northumberland fuffered on Tower-Hill, and to the Amazement of all the World, been a Papift; in Truth of which, like eft of his Sayings, and all the Actions of his was universally doubted. It being much further that he made this Declaration of his Religion, pes of a Pardon, which John Fox fays, was, on condition, expressly promis'd him, if his HEAD, he should make it, were on the Block. Howhis Conduct confider'd, it fhould feem most for lonour of the Protestant Religion, to own him the ber of any other Communion. With him suf-Sir Thomas Palmer, whose Evidence he had use of to destroy the Duke of Samerset; as also ohn Gates, who had been concerned in the fame and the People did not fail to put them all in mind of it, as they went to Execution. The n, however, did two popular Things, to balance Severities: The restored the Coin to its old Standand the remitted an Aid granted by Parliament Prother Edward: Which Acts of her's were received; and, in all Probability, the might reigned in Safety and Peace, if the had not lift-to the Councils of those Bigots, who thought the ning of Protestant Divines, the only Means of seng their Church; which, on the contrary, it rend universally hated, as some of the wifest among Papists perceived it would: The they dust not are as much, for Fear of being thought Facourers ferefy; the Suspicion of which had well nigh fatal to Cardinal Poor, tho' it had no other and than his natural Sweetness of Temper, and t Moderation (a).

ARDINER, Bishop of Winchester, and Lord reellor, was the Queen's Prime Minister in the nning of her Reign. He was a warm Friend to ry, and as warm an Enemy to the Princess Elib; whose Conduct himself and his Dependents avoured to render suspected to the Queen, with n she never stood well. Sir William Cecil end very early into Negociations with this Princess, hich some Whispers were brought to the then ing Queen; but she had such a Considence in William's Loyalty, that she resused to hear any plations against him. There seems to have been eason for this, which I do not find any of our prians have mentioned. The Queen was very ous that Cardinal Peol should come over into and, as the Pope's Legate, and the Pope accor-ly sent him with that Character; but the Em-having his Son's Match with the Queen much eart, procured a Stop to be put to his Eminency's mey, till it was finished: Which Delay was ered by the Practices of Gardiner and his Crea-, who took much Pains to represent Pool as eak Man, and unfit to manage State Affairs. re was however among Queen MARY's Counnot a few who defired to fee more moderate fures taken than were then in Use; with these William Cecil affociated himself, and at last they prevailed, that Lord Paget. Mr. Hastings, and William Cecil, were fent to bring over the Car-; which accordingly they did on the Twentyof November, 1554. (b) In the Month of May next Year, the Knight went over with the nal, who with other Lords was commissioned to of Peace, and remained abroad with him about Months. Thus tho' his Religion excluded Sir am from Office, yet he lived not only upon good ns with the Ministry, but in great Confidence them; yet not in such Confidence as that for their Sakes he would betray either his Conscience or his Country: Of which I shall shortly proceed to give an Inflance, equally worthy of Praise and Imitation. (c) In the Year 1555, Gardiner's Vindictive Spirit prevailing, a Multimade of Executions proclaimed his Wrath against the Reformed. Prelates, venerable from their Age, and beloved for the Excellence of their Behaviour, sealed the Truths they had taught with their Blood; many Clergymen followed them in the same fiery Way; to their succeeded Numbers of both Sexes, and of all Ages. Their Deaths did not so much terrify as incense the People; insomuch that the most surrous Papists were afraid. The Bishops sought to lift the Odium from themselves, and throw it upon the Court; but King Philip was too great a Politician to be duped by Priests. His Confessor Alphonse, on the 10th of February 1555, Preached before him, and in his Sermon declared that Perfecution was contrary to the Scheme of CHRIST; that the Bishops were in the wrong, to make use of fanguinary Measures; in Justification of which he said they could not produce so much as one Text in the NEW TESTAMENT (d). The Bijbops upon this were much more moderate, till the Queen by a Letter, dated May 24, re-kindled Bonner's Zeal, and forced him to light up the Fires again. She at the same time caused a List of all the Church-Lands, at that Time belonging to the Grown, to be delivered to the Pope's Legate, being resolved to restore them. Towards the latter End of the Year, when King Philip had lest her, when her foolish Pretence of being with Child had exposed her, and when the Cruelty of her Rigots about her had rendered the whole Nation disaffected, a Parliamens was called, which met at Westminster on the 21st of October. In this Parliament Sir William Cecil was Knight for the County of Lincoln. In the House of Commons, little was done to the Liking of the Court : The Lords passed a Bill for Configuring the Estates of such as had fled for Religion: In the Lower House it was rejected with great Indignation. Warm Speeches were made on this, and other Occasions, particularly in relation to a Money Bill; in all which Sir William Cecil delivered himself frankly against the Condet of the Administration. One Day, when he had spoken with more than ordinary Applause, Sir Anthony Kingfon, Sir William Courtney, Sir John Pollard, and several other Members, invited themselves to Dinner with him. Sir William said, They should be welcome, provided they said nothing at Table of Parliamentary provided they faid nothing at Table of Parliamentary Affairs; to which they agreed. At Dinner, however, some of them talked a little too freely, for which Sir Wiliam represed them, and charged them with Breach of Promise. The Privy-Council had Intelligence of all that passed, and sending for the Knights, and Gentlemen, committed them all, referving Sir William Cecil to be last examined. As soon as he came into the Room, and had paid his Obedience to the Council, 'He made it his humble Request that they would not treat him as they had done the rest, which he owned he thought was a little severe, viz. in committing them first, that they might hear them afterwards; whereas it was his Suit to be heard first, and if then there should appear just Cause, he was content to be committed. You speak, Sir William, said Lord Paget, like a Man of Experience; Go on. Sir William making use of this Licence, proceeded to let the Affair in such a Light, that by the Consent of all the Council he was discharged. Sir William's short Account in his Diary, of his Conduct in this Parliament, will, without doubt, be more pleasing to the Reader, than any Thing I can say.  xxi Octobris, 1555. THROUGHOUT the remaining Part of this Reign Sir William was paffice, in respect to the Administration, to active in regard to the Interests of the Lady Elizabeth, whose Cause he espensed, and whose Councils he directed. In November 1558, a new Parliament was assembled. The House of Commons was not at all under the Direction of the Court; so the Queen had recourse to the House of Lords, who, at a Conference, laid before the Commons the miferable Condition the Kingdom was in, and the Necessity there was of granting Money. Upon this the Lower House entered into Debates about a Subsidy; but on the 17th, while these Debates continued, Mr. Sellicitor from the Lords, required the Speaker and the certain Matters. When they came, the Lord Chan-cellor flood up and faid, God hath taken the Queen to his Mercy, and bath furnified Us with another Sovereign Lady, my Lady Elizabeth, her Grace; directing the Knights and Burgesses to repair to the Palace, there to join with the Lords in a Proclamation. These were the publick Steps taken at London, the fecret Affairs of State were transacted where the Queen was in Person, and to these therefore we are next to

THE Lady Elizabeth was at her Seat at Hatfield when Queen Mary died, thither immediately some great Persons Repaired, to pay their Duty. On the 20th, a Council was held, wherein sate the Earl of Pembroke, the Lord Clinton Lord High Admiral, the Earl of Arundel Lord Chamberlain, Sir Ambrofe Cave, Sir Ralph Sadler, and Sir Richard Sackville; then Sir William Cecil, Knight, was declared her Principal Secretary of State, and fworn of her Privy Council, receiving the first Honour she conferred, and being the first Counsellor she ever had; then also Sir Thomas Parry was declared Comptroller of her Houshold, and swom of her Privy Countil, as likewife was Sir Edward Rogers, Knight, her Vice Chamberlain, and Captain of the Guard. How well Sir William Cecil deserved such extraordinary Marks of her Faceur, will appear from the following Minute of Steps proper to be taken on her first entering upn Government, which Sir William presented to her the very Day on which Queen Mary

A certain Letter being fent to an eminent Publisher address'd to the Author of a publick Parer, which Letter begins with the Recapitulation of Calumnies heretofore vented in a certain Weekly Journal, and immediately confuted, goes on to mention another Affair, long ago adjusted, and in Conclusion reslects highly on a certain Right Honourable Person, with fome most scandalous Language pointed at ____. The Author or Authors of the said base and injurious Writing, are hereby given to understand, that altho' they teign themselves to be Persons of high Rank, the Gentleman to whom it was directed, contemns their Threatnings, defies their Malice, and far from being intimidated by their Bravo-like Infinuations, is determined to proceed in the same Manner, to expole all Pretenders to Patriotism, and in case he is attacked otherwise than by Writing, to repel Force by Force.

Testerday arriv'd the Mail due from Holland. HERE's particular Advice from Constantinople, by Letters from Venice, of the 16th ult. O. S. That the good Understanding not only continues betwirt the Porte and Persia, but is going to be ce-mented by a new Alliance, which is on Foot, betwixt the Grand Seignior and Kouli Kan, who in order to offablish a Peace at home, has gain'd over the Leaders of the Malecontents by great Advantages, and promoting them to considerable Posts in the Army; and they flatter themselves at Constantinople, that when he is well fettled on the Throne, he will furnish the Porte with Succours against the Russians. "I is certain, that these Hopes must be founded in a great Measure, upon the New Alliance that is on the Carpet ; tho' the Turkish Ministry are already to fure of the Persians, that they have recall'd the few Troops they had lest on their Frontier, and order'd them to march towards Europe, and to join the Grand Army
